Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh, in its destructive force, stands next to and undoubtedly leads on to consumption. It is, therefore, singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies, concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge, have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful palliatives.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and combated with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilage of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and of tasting so affected as to be useless, the uvula so elongated, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distressing cough.

Sanford's Radical Cure meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional, Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe. Each package contains one bottle of the Radical Cure, one box Catarrhal Solvent and an Improved In-haler, with treatise; price, $1. POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., Boston

GENERAL MANSON AND JEFF DAVIS. The Old War Democrat Explains His Speech

Made at Knoxville, Tenn.

Special to the Indianapolis Journas. CRAWFORDSVILLE, June 6 .- Considerable has been said in regard to the speech of Gen. M. D., Manson at Knoxville, Tenn., on Memorial day more especially his answer to the question of what he thought of Jeff Davis. The papers of the South denounce his speech in the most bitter terms, and accese him of waving the "bloody shirt." Some of the Democrate at Knoxville try to make excuse for the answer given by saying that General Manson was drunk and that he is childish, and many other things. The General was in Crawfordsville over Sunday and says that the following is the true story of the whole affairs Some person in the audience sent up a slip of paper to the stand with the following question written thereon: "What do you think of Jeff Davis!" General Manson, in reply, said: "Some one asks me what I think of Jeff Davis. I think that Jefferson Davis is a wandering star, a man without a country, but who could have a country did he but ask for the pardon of the government he sought to destroy. He has been crowned by his enthusiastic Southern admirers. You may crown him with a crown of silver; you may crown him with a crown of gold; you may crown him with a crown of diamonds; you may crown him with a crown of righteousness-but all to no purpose. Like the vase in which roses have once been distilled-You may break, you may shatter the vase if you will,

But the seent of dark treason will cling around it The General says that he did not know that he had created such a commotion until after he had returned to the North, and then the papers commenced to publish dispatches about the disturbance he bad caused at Knoxville and throughout the South. General Manson is a Democrat and also a loyal man. No Jeff Davis wash goes down his throat. The Democrats of the South should ask themselves the ques-

From present indications the Republicans will have sixty-five in the Legislature and the Democrats twenty-five. Every Republican State Senator in Oregon is probably

At 11 o'clock this evening the lights in the sick-room were turned low and it was said the General was dozing. Not since the first attack has there been such unmistakable evidence of sanguine hope shown both by the members of the family and friends as this evening. Mrs. Sheridan left the house about 9 o'clock, for the first time in nearly two weeks, and took an hour's drive about the neighborhood, using, to avoid attracting attention, the public cab which is kept constantly in waiting. Other members of the family spent an hour or more sitting upon the front porch, in unconstrained conversation. ONCE MORE TO THE BREACH.

Hope and Is Correspondingly Happy.

The Indiana Delegation Sees a Gleam Sr. Louis June 6.—There is a marked revival of the Gray boom to-night, and his supporters are more enthusiastic than they have been any time since Saturday. They are by no means confident, but they are extremely hopeful. The faith that is in them seems to have a better foundation than has characterized it in the last few days. Yesterday they did nothing, for they met with discouragements on every hand. Their cause revived to-day, for two reasons-first, because the ingenious introduction of Thurman's name in the convention failed arouse anything like the demonstration expected, and second, because the Gray men showed enough strength in the convention to compel a concession on the part of the opposition in the matter of adjourning over until tomorrow, while California tried to counteract the effect of this by supporting Mr. Voorhees's motion to adjourn, as a representative of the Thurman men. The furore for the old Roman, for that is all it has been, has evidently abated considerably to-day. That he is yet the strongest and most formidable candidate cannot be denied, and it is equally plain that he is the most likely of any to be nominated, but yet there is a good fighting chance for Gray. This feeling is general around the headquarters, and to-night every available man for Indiana has been pressed into service to do missionary work. The first ray of hope came from Illinois, which promised to support Indiana's Governor. Voorhees and Turpie visited the Iowa delegation at 3 o'clock and got the promise of the support of more thay one-half of the delegates. Then they went among other States, and to-night Georgia promised to vote for Gray with her twenty-four votes, and a good support was assured from Alabama and South Carolina. Just before midnight a New York delegate, who professed to speak by authority, said that a large portion of his delegation, in fact, all but the Tammany men. would vote for Gray. These assurances cheered the failing hearts, and revived the drooping spirits of the Hoosiers, and they went to work like beavers. They have very wisely thrown aside the mask of personal adoration of their servative all through the fight. He said frankly to the Journal correspondent to-night that he did not really believe Gray would be nominated. but that his cause looked far more favorable than at any time. "If Thurman goes in," he added, "it will be the result of popular enthusiasm, and not of the sober, political sense of the John A. Holman thinks that the Thurman excitement is only a blind to cover the springing of some new administration chandidate, either Dickinson, Vilas or Stoneman, of California. Pierre Gray is very chipper to-night and is scattering those Union City smiles of his all around in reckless profusion. Last night he was enveloped in deep gloom, and so was his brother Bayard, who also feels encouraged tonight but is not at all sanguine. The Gray men insist that the disaffection in the Ohio delegation is by no means quieted yet, and will manifest itself when the proper time comes.

The original intention of the Thurman boomers was to get up the excitement so high that he would be nominated by acclamation. They saw that this could not be done this morning, and they changed their plan so as to nominate him on the first ballot. This is still their scheme, but to-night some of them admit that it may take two ballots to get their man in. They have been counting noses, and figure out that they already have votes pledged to them. 213 for Gray and 81 scattering. M. F. Tarpey, of California, lender of the Thurman boom, claims that the old Roman's name will electrify the convention, and those who are now doubtful or wavering will fall in with a hurrah, and he will be nominated on the first ballot. The Gray men, and they are very enthusiastic and active, urge that if Thurman is not nominated on the first ballot he will not be at all; that his strength is entirely sentimental, without any political pasis, and that it must fail.

material vote from the Thurman delegation after the first ballot. Morrison seems to be entirely out of the race. There is a strong undercurrent of feeling in favor of Black, on account of his political record in eastern Illinois, and it is not unreasonable to suppose that, should the Thurman sentiment fail, a large part of the old Roman's strength will go to him. Taking every consideration, the indications to-night still point to Thurman's nomination, although Gray is in the race near the front. The newspapers here are standing in with the enemy, so to speak. All the afternoon papers say that the Gray cause is acttent of printing an interview with O. O. Stealey, a member of the Indiana delegation, in which he is quoted as saying that Gray's name will be withdrawn in the morning. Stealey says this is all a lie; that he hasn't said anything of the

The Black men say they are promised a very

This is the most unenthusiastic national convention held in the last fifteen years. The outburst when Cleveland was named by Dougherty in a dress-parade speech this morning was, to be sure, enthusiastic, demonstrative, and longcontinued, but after the first few minutes it was evidently and painfully forced and kept up in a sort of perfunctory manner that did not indicate genuine feeling. If Cleveland takes a pinch of snuff the convention success-that is the way things are being run. The victory today was of a very cheap kind. Dougherty's speech was far below expectations, and the only genuine hit that was made was by McKenzie, of Kentucky, whose speech was original and

A great many Indiana people left for their homes to-night, worn out with their three-days' stay and disgusted with the treatment they had received.

Just before midnight, to-night, a detachment of the Hendricks Club and their drum corps came parading into the Lindel Hotel, and the crowd of Indianians helped them to keep up a horrible din for more than an hour. They made a good deal of noise, but probably not many votes; but then, that is a way they have of doing. The Ohio delegation held a meeting to-night, and decided that the time had come when they should abandon their passive attitude as to the Thurman candidacy, and go to work in his behalf. It was agreed that General Powell should second the nomination, fololwing Judge Tarpey, of California, and the delegation will support him as a unit.

BEGINNING THE DAY.

Scenes in the fall While the Delegates Wes Finding Their Seats.

Sr. Louis, June 6 .- The convention gathered tardily this morning, owing, probably, to th protracted meeting of the platform committee last night and its further conference at 9 o'clock to-day. The national committee and the committee having in charge the seating arrangements of the hall, are evidently gallant people, for the ladies were the first to get into the building, and were comfortably seated in the balconies before a half thousand men could be seen in the auditorium. There was a picturesque flutter of fans all over the hall, pages having thoughtfully distributed them in every seat. This was a happy idea, for the atmosphere of the hall was close, and there was a disposition on the part of the visitors in the galleries to imitate the habit of the small boy in the peanut gallery and view the proceedings in their shirtsleeves. Spectators who notice small things in the convention speculate as to the identity of a new face which appeared in the portrait gallery on the face of the east-gallery railing. Few persons recognized the painting, for it is a roughly-made painting of Thurman as he looked ten years ago. The portrait was taken from the California headquarters, and has been thus conspicuously hung up to help the red bandannas boom the old Roman into the vicepresidential place on the ticket. There is no motto beneath this portrait, is the case with those of Tilden, Cleveland, Hendricks and Hancock, which hang beside it. Among the early arrivals in the hall was the delegation of women, who are here to insist upon the incorporation of a plank in the platform in favor of woman's right to vote. These ladies looked much freeher than the members of the platform committee, with whom they bad a protracted discussion last night, but without convincing the committee. Chief Stepographer Dickinson, who was the first official to appear upon the stage, looked up from his notes at this interesting group, which was seated in one of the boxes just in front of his desk, and appeared to be on excellent terms with the fair pentitioners. A number of the newspaper men, like the wise virgins, came prepared. Anticipating a debate upon the tariff plank of the platform committee's report, they brought lunches with them and are fortified for a siege. As the delegates came in there was a good deal of talk about the efforts to be made by the silver men to have their views reflected in the platform, and as to the chances of some of their representatives getting the floor and participating in a discussion upon this rather delicate question upon the floor of the convention.

In the early hours of the morning while the onvention was gathering, but a single red bansuns could be seen in the ball, and that hung istlessly from one of the boxes occupied by the woman suffragists. But there were thousands of pockets bulging out with Thurman banners, ready to be thrown to the convention breeze at the proper moment. The Gray men still held on to their gray hats and gray muslin banners hung on to the end of their canes and umbrellas. A new and pretty decoration appeared upon the floor of the ball, just before the hour for convening arrived. This was a floral shield four feet high, made of red and white roses, and bearing across its front a bar of cape jasmines, in which appears the name "P. A. Coland above the word "Massachusetts." This handsome tribute to the permanent chairman of the convention was examined with great interest, as it stood conspicuously elevated at the base of the platform. But there was no cheering, as on yesterday, as the delegates filed in, not now in delegations, as on the first day, but in pairs and little groups. The Ohio and New York delegates were particularly tardy in getting in, and there were groundless rumors in consequence that there was a hitch in the Thurman programme, which included a second, after his nomination by Tarpey, of California, by General Powell, of Ohio.

The first applause of the morning was evoked by the appearance of a Thurman bandanna placed upon the banner-pole of the Wisconsin delegation. At this moment temporary Chairman White appeared upon the stage and con-sulted with Chairman Barnum, of the national committee, at which the applause increased in volume, but was short-lived, and soon died out, leaving the convention in the listless condition which had characterized it for an hour. The orchestra in the west gallery enlivened the otherwise tedious gathering of the body with some excellent music, which occasionally, as it became familiar, provoked a brief but resounding cheer. Ex-Attorney-general Lewis C. Cassidy, of Philadelphia, the chairman of the committee on permanent organization, mounted the platform and whispered earnestly into the ear of Chairman White, who handling his silver gavel, waiting for the convention to gather. Mr. Cassidy was evidently known to the convention which applauded him feebly. At 10 o'clock not more than half of the delegates had put in an appearance, and none of the members of the platform committee had entered the hall. The consultation between Chairman White and Mr. Cassidy was as to the advisability of calling the convention to order before the committeemen arrived. There was a disposition to go on with the permanent organization, anyhow, in order to enable the convention to adjourn finally to-day. There was a conspicuous absence of visiting clubs, who had either been disquieted at the refusal of the convention to give them the hall, or were waiting until the last moment to make a more effective and theatrical entrance, but before any of them appeared the chairman decided to call the body to order without waiting for the members of the

A TREMENDOUS HURRAH.

Twenty Minutes of Howling by a Crowd of Twelve Thousand People.

Sr. Louis, June 6.-The Democratic national convention to-day broke the record for the greatest display of enthusiaem ever witnessed in a similar body. For over twenty consecutive minutes twelve thousand people filled the air of the great convention hall with a volume of undiminishing applause, comparable with nothing on earth, perhaps, save the roar of the falls of Niagara. It was at the utterance of these words: "I give you a name entwined with victory-I nominate Grover Cleveland, of New York." The speaker was Daniel Dougherty, of Tamany Hall. With head proudly every fibre of his fine features quivering, every nerve of his noble figure tense, magnificent-voiced orator was alternately thrilling the vast audience and holding them spellbound, when, at the climax of his eloquence, ho named for the first time the man who was uppermost in the thoughts of all. It was needless to utter another word. Mr. Dougherty paused for a moment to gaze over the hundreds of frantic, sheering delegates at the even more frantic thousands of spectators beyond. High above the forest of heads were waving innumerable red bandannas. Hats and canes were being pitched into the sir, while the cheering was becoming so terrific that no single enthusiast could hear his own screech in the one over-powering general yell.

At this moment, in the mammoth picture of the Capitol at Washington covering the wall far above the platform, and in plain view of the whale convention, the doors were seen to swing back, and the smiling face of President Cleveland beamed out on his admirers. Everybody in the hall seemed fairly beside themselves with excitement. The stone bust of the President near the speakers' stand was crowned with a wreath of green, snatched by almost frenzied hands from among the decerations of the platform. Long-poled State banners among the delegates were being whirled wildly in the air, when suddenly the convention, with a mighty shout, discovered Daniel Dougherty climbing on a chair in the middle of the New Yorkers on the floor. He was waving aloft an American flag.

As if moved by a common impulse, the standardbearers of the different States all pressed toward the New Yorker, each seeking to reach Dough-erty's starry emblem with their tall staffs and toes it to the roof. At this moment the hundred American eagles ornamenting the railing of the gallery were being torn off, and their outstretched mimic wings, six feet from tip to tip, were flapping their golden wings, with the assistance of the nearest spectators, men and women

In sheer mercy to the people, Chairman Col-line at length interposed, and after repeated efforts directed their attention to a tall Kentuckian who stood beside him. This gentleman, delegate McKenzie, was to second the nomination of Cleveland, and aroused the convention to a renewed outburst almost at the first word by declaring there was but one Democrat in the country more popular than Mr. Cleveland—the queenly woman he has made his wife. Again the convention was in an uproar, when the speaker gave a brand-new title to the leader of the Republicans—the "Florentine Mosaic from Maine." McKenzie moved to now suspend the rules and make the nomination of Cleveland absolutely unanimous: but everytody wished to join in seconding Cleveland, and everybody was given a chance. Then the thing was done with one extraordinary hurrah.

The other main feature of the day in the convention was the four-cornered struggle between the Thurman men, the Gray men, the tariff reformers and the protective tariff element. The Thurman delegates were eager to have the nomination for Vice president made at once, while the enthusiasm was at fever beat. They were reinforced by the tariff reformers, who were incersed at the delay of the committee on platform, and eager to administer a rebuke. The Gray men were using Fabian tactics, and had able allies in the protectionists. Roswell Flower, of New York, and Daniel Voorhees, of Indians, were the leaders. latter spokesman of Gray. as the Though outnumbered many times over, the phalanx under Voorhees was making a most determined fight, contesting every inch in a way that threatened to develop ugly feelings. Just when things had a particularly squally aspect, White, of California, in the interest of the old Roman, poured oil on the troubled waters. The postponement asked for by Voorhees was advocated by White on broad grounds in a manuer as magnanimous as it was unexpected. The adournment was in peace. Many left the hall with dark forebodings regarding what might take place in the platform committee before the convention reassembled, but the great majority of delegates fell to discussing, on the way out from the hall, the exciting details of their own pro-

A BLACK EYE FOR THURMAN. Yesterday's Adjournment Causes a Revival of Hope Among His Opponents.

Special to the Andianapolis Journal. Sr. Louis, June 6 .- Governor Throckmorton, of Texas, than whom the old Roman has had no more vigorous or enthusiastic supporter since the Texans marched out of the Union Depot, on Saturday morning, hit the nail squarely on the head when, towards the close of to-day's proceedings in the convention, he shouted above the din: "You have nominated Cleveland without a platform; why can't you nominate Thurman without one?" The fact is, and it cannot be gainsaid, that the premature adjournment was a black eye for the favorite in the race. It was a surprise in two ways. First, in that it showed the magnetic influence of the Tall Sycamore of the Wabash over the delegates, and second, because it demonstrated that the Ohio man's strength had been overestimated. It is very true that Lieutenant-governor White, of California, who, unwisely, as many people think, seconded Voorbees's motion, and who, in doing so, was diplomatic enough to suggest that the move was in the interest of California's candidate, contributed materially to the result; but, nevertheless, appearances indicated that, even had the proposition been supported exclusively from the Gray side of the hall, it would have carried. The Thurman men admit as much to-night, and are kicking themselves because none of their number had sense or forethought enough to adopt filibustering tactics and endeavor to force a nomination in that way. That the supporters of the Indiana Governor have some shrewd move in view is pretty certain. The shouters have been called in. Their headquarters are deserted, and for the first time in many days Senator Voorhees has not been near the Lindell since be left it after breakfast. It is evident that they are scheming as quietly now as they were yelling vigorously on Monday and yesterday. Whatever may be the mystery of their latest game, it has not developed up to this writ-

Delegate Ewing, of Indiana, who holds solitary possession of the headquarters, pleaded ignorance, and at the same time winked suggestively when asked what was in the wind. "One thing I will tell you, however," he said, "and that is that the nominee to morrow will not be Thurman. He has been knocked in the head. If Gray is not the coming man, it will be a dark horse. We have been counting noses to-day. and we can reckon on 365 supporters on the first ballot. The Thurmanites claim to have 500, but they cannot produce the goods. Indiana's solid delegation will be supported by Colorado, by part of Illinois, part of Kentucky and a part of Tennessee, besides a good scattering vote from other States. We will show such a strength on the first bailot that it will be likely to bring about a landslide before many more are taken. If we find, after having exerted all of our strength, that we cannot nominate our man, we will go in for the most available dark horse. Such is the

The dark horse with which the old Roman is to be beaten will be Don M. Dickinson, of Michgan. Some say Black, but his boomlet is hardly likely to be resurrected with any show of success, especially so long as Wm. R. Morrison sits grim and erect in the front row of the Illinois delegation. Much depends on the temper of the convention to-morrow. If Judge Tarpey, of California, who is to put the Obio man in nomipation, succeeds in arousing the same intense degree of enthusiasm for Thurman which prevailed yesterday, and in some measure this morning-and his speech is clearly designed to have that effect-Thurman may be carried through on the first ballot.

If a second, or, at most, a third ballot is taken, and he still fails of success, his name will, in all probability be withdrawn. Then his support will go to whoever is known to be the personal candidate of the administration. Who that man is will be known here before morning, and the knowing ones say that, Thurman out of the race, Don M. Dickinson, by the President's choice, will be the President's running mate. The Thurman people, however, are just as confident as ever. For instance, Patrick Kelly, of St. Paul, the Democratic boss of Minneosta said, to-night: "Don't you worry, partner; it's all right and all fixed. Tell you what I'll do. I'll put up $1,000 against anybody's $500, right here and now, that Thurman will be the nominee tomorrow, add if you will bring me a Gray man or any other man who is ready to put up, I will give you the best silk hat in town, a dozen of them when gather in the stakes to-morrow. Why, man alive, if the representatives of the Democratic party failed to nominate the grand old Roman this time, they ought to go away and hide their heads in barrels for an eternity. There was no scheme behind the adjournment to-day. The only thing that influenced the vote was the knowledge that if the nomitations were compelled to-day, only a corporal's guard would remain to hear the resolutions read to morrow, and that would not do, by any means. Thurman's sup-
